Vacature Tekst

To our international students, we offer a solid foundation in Software Engineering (Informatics) first, followed by a variety of areas to deepen in. We want our students to become quality-driven, innovative software developers and support this with an international, student-centered, practice-oriented and multidisciplinary environment.

For more info on our campus and our program see www.fontysvenlo.nl

How you'd work, to make impact

- You'll work with students, online and physically, in projects, in class and in discussions;
- You'll coach students and challenge them to develop their knowledge and skills;
- You'll contribute to the development of our bachelor program, together with our team and in discussion with your/our network with the (international) professional field;
- You'll work together with other programs on campus (Engineering, Logistics, Business, Health Care) to offer students a broad perspective on how to make impact.

What do we seek in you?

- You are passionate, especially about working with students and about software development, with a motivating drive towards students and colleagues;
- You have a pragmatic and team-oriented way of working, combined with goal-orientation, and an international and open mindset.

Your education and background:

- A master degree in IT or related;
- A lot of knowledge in modern software development and project management;
- Good skills in English, preferably some skills in Dutch and/or German.

If you do not yet have a master's degree but have a lot of experience in the field and the intrinsic motivation to work with students, we also invite you to respond.

Our team?

We are a highly driven team, standing with each other. Each team member is broad involved in our program and enjoys discussions with our students. We do not go for a specific technology stack, instead there is quite some space to develop yourself. Get in contact with us and let us discuss ideas and possibilities!

Terms of employment
